

Harold C. Guy III, Ph.D.
Dean, Behavioral, Social, and Business Studies
Prince George's Community College
Largo, Maryland

Harold was born July 8, 1943 in Newport News, Virginia to Harold C. Guy Jr. and Charlotte Matthews Guy. He has one brother, Mark. Harold took up golf at the age of fifteen and played for four years, but didn't play again until age 38. He credits Jehan Johnson, a member at Willow Oaks Country Club in Richmond, Virginia; George H. Bird, PGA Professional at Willow Oaks Country Club; and Bill Sporre, PGA Professional at Crofton Country Club in Crofton, Maryland with introducing him to the game and teaching him to play.

Harold's chosen career path was influenced by his history teacher, Robert McKenney, at Manchester High School and by his sociology professor, Dr. James Sartain, at the University of Richmond. Since Harold believes that experience is what one teaches oneself and wisdom is what one learns from others, he has been quite fortunate in both his educational/academic life and his golf life to have crossed paths with some very wise people and merely heeded their advice.

Harold earned his Bachelor of Arts degree in History and Sociology at the University of Richmond in 1965. He was a Maxwell Fellow at Syracuse University from 1974-1975 and earned his Ph.D. in Political Sociology there in 1977. Harold has advanced at Prince George's Community College from his start in 1967 as a Sociology Instructor to his current position as Dean in 1994.

Some of Harold's papers presented at professional gatherings over the years have included "Social Structural and Social Psychological Antecedents of Political Coalition Behavior, 1952-1972", "The Development of Religious Thought", "Nationalism, Capitalism and Warfare: Vietnam", and "The Invisible Man and Sociological Imagination: A White Kid on the Visible Side of the Playground, Norfolk, Virginia in the 1950s".

Harold received the Maryland Association for Higher Education's Distinguished Program Award in 1982. He is listed in the 1986 edition of Who's Who Among Scholars in American Community, Technical, and Junior Colleges. He was awarded Prince George's Community College's President's Medal in 1988 and their Outstanding Administrator award in 2000. Harold has dedicated countless hours as the MAPGA's volunteer Section Historian since 2001 researching the MAPGA's Hall of Fame members. His outstanding work has expanded the Section's knowledge of its historic past.

In 1998, Dr. Guy finished as the Runner Up in the First Flight of the Crofton Country Club Match Play Championship. In 1999, he finished third in the Washington Metropolitan Golf Association Seniors Championship. And in 2002, Harold won the Second Flight of the Crofton Country Club Stroke Play Championship. He has even recorded five holes-in-one. Luck be with him!

Harold has one daughter, Amy Guy Vailikit.
