Resort Category

Jeremy A. Hyjek, PGA

Kingsmill Resort, Williamsburg, Virginia

Jeremy Hyjek was born on November 30, 1974 in Springfield, Vermont to Eugene and Deborah Hyjek. He started playing golf at eight years old and was fortunate enough to have a family who played the game recreationally; recalling that most of his weekends were spent on the golf course with his parents. Jeremy gives credit to retired PGA member Donald Warner who encouraged him to continue pursuing a career as a golf professional.

Jeremy graduated from Methodist University with a degree in Business Administration. His first golf-related job was in 1993, fulfilling requirements for a Professional Golf Management (PGM) internship at Crown Point Country Club under the tutelage of Dave Pfannenstein, PGA.

Jeremy became a golf professional in 1996 where he worked at Stratton Resort in Bondville, Vermont and Neshobe Golf Club in Brandon, Vermont as an apprentice. From 1998-2000, Jeremy continued his apprenticeship at Bellows Falls Country Club in Bellows Falls, Vermont and in 2000 won the Vermont Chapter PGA Player of the Year. Shortly after Bellows Falls, he moved to the Middle Atlantic Section and has worked at Kingsmill Resort. He was elected to PGA membership in 2004.

Jeremy's personal golf philosophy is to get the job done, no matter what, and he prides himself in giving his customers exactly what was promised to them. Jeremy and his wife, Monica, have been married for 14 years and have a daughter, Lena Mae (1).
